

The Labour Insurance Administration Association

What is the Labour Insurance Administration Association?

The labour insurance administration association is an organisation authorised by the Minister of Health, Labour, and Welfare. It is allowed to take the labour insurance procedures for business owners running small- or medium-sized companies.

How to Apply for the Entrustment Service of the Labour Insurance Procedures

To use the entrustment service of the labour insurance procedures, submit “an application form for entrustment of the labour insurance procedures” to the labour insurance administration association to which you want to apply.

Who Can Apply for the Entrustment Service?

To apply for the entrustment service, you should be...

A finance, insurance, real estate, or retailing business owner who regularly employs less than 50 workers.

A wholesale or service business owner who regularly employs less than 100 workers.

A business owner who regularly employs less than 300 workers in an industry that is not mentioned above.

What Can the Labour Insurance Administration Association Do?

What the labour insurance administration association can do is as follows,

1. An entrustment service to file and pay estimated or final insurance premiums
2. An entrustment service to submit a notification of the insurance relation establishment, an application form for voluntary enrolment, and a notification of the establishment of applicable place of business
3. An entrustment service to apply for the special enrolment in the labour accident compensation insurance
4. An entrustment service to submit notifications for workers covered by the employment insurance
5. Other entrustment services for applications, notifications, and reports relating to the labour insurance

The labour insurance administration association is not allowed to deal with stamp insurance premiums and to claim insurance benefits to the labour accident compensation insurance and the employment insurance.

If applying for the entrustment service by the labour insurance administration association, there are some good points below.

- You can save time since the labour insurance administration association takes your duty to do insurance procedures such as declarations and payments of labour insurance premiums.
- You can divide your payment in three times regardless of the amount of your premiums.
- Non-qualified persons such as business owners and their family members can apply for the labour accident compensation insurance.

If you do not apply for enrolment in the labour insurance, go to your nearest labour standards inspection office or jobcentre.
